Effective Communication Etiquette Using Telehealth Technologies

Melanie Esher, MAdm

Distance Education & Event Coordinator

Telehealth? Telemedicine?

Telehealth is sometimes discussed interchangeably with telemedicine. The Health Resources and Services Administration distinguishes telehealth from telemedicine in its scope. According to them, telemedicine only describes remote clinical services; such as diagnosis and monitoring, while telehealth includes preventative, promotive and curative care delivery...[and] includes...non-clinical applications like administration and provider education which make telehealth the preferred modern terminology.

Why be concerned about virtual communication etiquette?

Technology + Telecommunications = Telehealth/Telemedicine

Technology + Telecommunications = Access to Healthcare

Telehealth/Telemedicine = Healthcare at a Distance

~Janet Major

Considerations for a telehealth encounter: bedside manner vs webside manner

1. Space to make first impression is smaller
2. Preparation for first session
3. Verbal communication during encounter
4. Lack of visible body language
5. Practice

Space to make first impression is smaller

- Two-dimensional
- Visual limitations

“You never get a second chance to make a great first impression”

~ Will Rogers

Goal: develop and maintain a positive patient-provider relationship!

Preparation for first session

- Equipment
- Physical space
- Provider appearance
- Preparation

Verbal communication during encounter

- Explanation
- Confirming connection
- Introductions
- Solicit feedback
- Disconnecting procedures

Goal: Fostering a positive relationship

Lack of visible body language

- How much body language visible
- Hand gestures
- Reactionary movements

Practice!

- Selfies with video!
- Understand what patient/client sees
- Review and make adjustments

Technology

- Makes the world a smaller place
- Keeps people in their communities
