Historically, African American, Latinx, Native American, Asian American Pacific Islander, and Alaskan Native communities have not had their stories accurately told. Those from outside their communities have co-opted their history and experience, thus providing an inauthentic and incorrect narrative.

Presenter: Dr. Yvonne Poitras Pratt

Join us on April 7th as we launch our series of webinars with Dr. Yvonne Poitras Pratt, Associate Professor, Werklund School of Education at the University of Calgary and author of Digital Storytelling in Indigenous Education: A Decolonizing Journey for a Metis Community, on how community members must be the ones that tell their own unique stories and the significance of that shaping the story of where they are going.
